Viewpoint J: Worts' Causeway / Shelford Road

General Description

Top: An enlargement taken from the 180° static panorama of Viewpoint J, visualising the visual magnitude of the numerous towers within the historic core.

Right: A map showing the extent of the enlargement, denoted by a blue view cone.

See previous page for the scale of each enlargement.

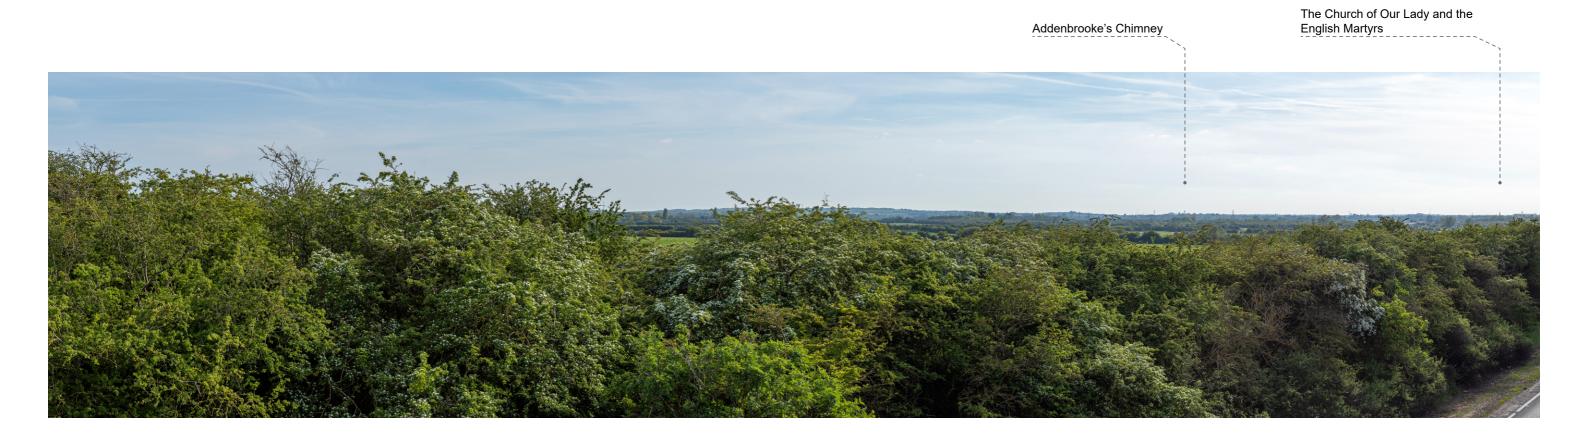

All Saints Church

Separation between Addenbrooke's complex/historic core/ Cambridge East is key for legibility of the historic core.

Strategic Viewpoint J

General Description

View K1, a 90° long distance view over the A14 towards Cambridge, providing a broad perspective of the city's skyline from the west. The image is annotated to indicate key points in the city's skyline.

Key Elements and Sensitivities

- A largely obscured view, dominated by trees lining the A14. The gap created by the span of the A14 permits compact views into the city, bracketed by Addenbrooke's to the south and Cambridge Airport to the north. The skyline is very subtle from this viewpoint, with few buildings contrasting against the horizon.
- Cambridge City Airport possesses a relatively high visual prominence, primarily attributed to the absence of tree coverage to the east of its runway. Additionally, the bright white hue of the airport's hangars creates a visual contrast with the predominantly rural environment. This particular vista holds significance as it demonstrates the abruptness of Cambridge's skyline, with the airport visible before rural fields.
- The spire of the Church of Our Lady and the English Martyrs is easily visible in the landscape. Despite standing approximately 5.5 kilometres away, it commands significant visual attention due to its size and prominence. This emphasises how industrial architecture has made a notable impact on the city's skyline. However, the chimney's solitary presence on the skyline also highlights the scarcity of industrial buildings in Cambridge's overall landscape, showcasing their limited survival in the area.
- The right quarter of the image is predominantly obscured by the treeline north of the A14, resulting in an obstruction of Cambridge's rural northern outskirts. This serves as an illustrative example of the treed landscapes characteristic of the region..

Viewpoint K2: Little Wilbraham Road over A14

Very long range glimpsed view.

Heritage assets are not significant defining features of the skyline- few are discernible in this view e.g. Our Lady and the English Martyrs. Assets that can be identified are mostly obscured by the treeline.

Cambridge Airport

Mostly obscured foreground looking out over the rural south of Cambridge

Addenbrooke's

Gap

Historic Core

Rural midground with few built features.

Entirely obscured foreground and midground, with heavy traffic.

Extent of View K1 Extent of View K2

General Description

Top: View K2, a 90° static panorama over the A14 towards Cambridge, providing a broad perspective of the city's skyline from the west. The image is annotated to indicate key points in the city's skyline.

Bottom: A 180° static panorama from the same point, annotated to point out key elements within the landscape.

Right: A map highlighting the position of the viewpoint in relation to Cambridge.

Key Elements and Sensitivities

- A largely obscured view, dominated by trees lining the A14. The gap created by the span of the A14 permits compact views into the city, bracketed by Addenbrooke's to the south and Cambridge Airport to the north. The skyline is very subtle from this viewpoint, with few buildings contrasting against the horizon.
- Cambridge City Airport possesses a relatively high visual prominence, primarily attributed to the absence of tree coverage to the east of its runway. Additionally, the bright white hue of the airport's hangars creates a visual contrast with the predominantly rural environment. This particular vista holds significance as it demonstrates the abruptness of Cambridge's skyline, with the airport visible before rural fields.
- The spire of the Church of Our Lady and the English Martyrs is easily visible in the landscape. Despite standing approximately 5.5 kilometres away, it commands significant visual attention due to its size and prominence. This emphasises how industrial architecture has made a notable impact on the city's skyline. However, the chimney's solitary presence on the skyline also highlights the scarcity of industrial buildings in Cambridge's overall landscape, showcasing their limited survival in the area.
- The right quarter of the image is predominantly obscured by the treeline north of the A14, resulting in an obstruction of Cambridge's rural northern outskirts. This serves as an illustrative example of the treed landscapes characteristic of the region.

Viewpoint L: Ditton Meadows

Viewpoint M: Stourbridge Common

